THE report of the Harbour Master for the year 1879, published in another column, exhibits, as we expected it would, a falling off. in the number of vessels entered and cleared in Hongkong as compared-with previous years. The returns show a reduction of 5.28 oper cent, on the arrivals in 1878. This is not surprising when the general degression in trade is considered, and there is some satisfaction, at the same time, in learning, by a comparison of figures given by Mr. THOMSETT with those of last year, that the decrease of tonnage does not, after all, signify Consulat this port. any very sorious decline in trade but is princitally accounted for by the number of vessels entering and clearing in ballast in 1878. To illustrate this assertion we will give some comparative figures from the tables for 1878 and 1879. In 1878, 2,114 British vessels having 1,884,856 tons entered with cargoes; in 1879, 1,959 vessels, having 1,878,218 tons entered, showing a decrease of only 6,628 tons. In 1878, 1,885 British vessels with 1,710,904 tons Coleared with cargoes, against 1,834 vessels bright. and 1,769,231 tons in 1879, showing an increase in favour of the latter year of 57,327 tons, or, deducting the decrease in arrivals, a not increase in British shipever, we have a falling-off in foreign tonnage, represented by the following figures:-In 1878, 17,508 vessels, with 1,842,469 tons entered with cargoes, as compared with 17,368 vessels and 1,774,184 tons in 1879 showing a decrease of 68,285 tons. In 1878 there were 18,966 vessels with 1,888,037 tons cleared with cargoes as against 17,834 (Greagh, Hartigan, Hynes, Jackson, Mosson, and rossels and 1.766,254 tons in 1879, giving a reduction of 121,783 tons, or a net decrease on foreign shipping of 190,068 tons. Deducting the increase of 50,689 tons in the British shipping from this amount, we have in total decrease on the vessels carrying cargoes for 1879 of 189,379 tons. This, course, does not represent the entire decline in tonnage, for the number of vessels entered and cleared in ballast in 1878 was much greater than in 1879. The figures are as follow:-1878: vessels entered and cleared in ballast, 16,683, with 18366,821 tons; 1879: vessels, 14,934, with 1,052,513 tons; showing a decrease in 1879 of 314,308 tons. The low rates of freight prevailing in 1878 caused vessels to go seeking elsewhere and yards. has tended of late to keep them away from toby 15 yards. the post. The mere quantity of tonnago an tered and cleared at a port can never be relied upon to indicate the state of trade; it is necessary, to show the amount entered and Cox-5 yards, cleared in ballast. If a very large proportion remunerative as in 1878, and in this respect this occa-

we that the trade of 1880 will compare favourably with that of its immediate predecessor, though there will, probably, unless matters after speedily, be a more marked decline in the quantity of tonnage entering and clearing from the port.

It will be observed that the decrease in shipping is confined to sailing vessels. There is The tug-of-war will be the last event. an increase in the toppage of steamers shown team to consist of ten men, and the winning to the extent of 3.18 per cent, on 1878. This vently decline in the tonnage of sailing ships is no longer a source of surprise, and it is doubtful when it will conso. That the sailers will be altogether superseded we cannot think probable, but where time is a great consideration they must inevitably go to the walk. The substitution, in so large a degree, of steamers for thom has brought about a great change in the conduct of business everywhere.

The junk trade has, part passa, declined with the foreign trade. The Hurbour Master i Orders for Copies may be sent to the Daily of opinion that the increase in the number Press Office, where it is published, on to the of steamers under the Chinese flag has been partly instrumental in contributing to this result. There may be some truth in the supposition, but we should like to know to what extent the junk trade is affected by the action of the Canton Customs cruisers. If we can believe the Chinese themselves the Blockade established round the Colony keeps numbers of junks from entering the port. But it is impossible to obtain statistics that will throw light on this point, and we can only hope that some day, when freedom from molestation by Customs officials has been guaranteed to native craft, we may discover

> How will perhaps hardly excite wonder. I shows how decaly the Chinese Government resents the treaty he concluded with Russia, and at the same time reveals the malignity with which the luckless ex-Ambassador has been followed by his enemies. However deserving of punishment Cu'ung How may bave been becertainly has not, so far as we are aware done anything on this occasion worthy of the extreme sentence of the law. We trust that be has only been sentenced, and that his life will be spared as an act of clemency. Should the Chinese Government harshly decide to entorce the sentence, it will assuredly lose ground in the estimation of European Powers. Such punishment for diplomatic | lailure may be in consonance with oriental law, but it is irreconcileable with modern civilisation, and would be received as a fresh proof of the ingrained barbarity of Manchu rule. AFGHANISTAN.

Some twelve months ago Sir Henry Rawlinson some length as to whether they thought it likely unfavourably on the connection of mandarins with its defence." At present Herat is not threathe would steal the property under the circum- it, though efforts have been, and still are being, ened, but one cannot shut one's eyes to the fact stances stated. The defence he set up, but as to made to get up a new company to take the con-Lthat it would be at once menaced if the Rus-and he evidently wishes that it should be held by England. Sir Henry Rawlinson, though no less impressed with the importance of that city opines that the best solution of the difficulty is to hand over that stronghold to Persia, with whom our alliance should be close and cordial Commenting upon the future of Afghanistan The Times observes :- There is much to be said for holding the passes which lead from India, not the least argument being the command we thus acquire of the Central Asiau trade. But there is no military argument whatever for going beyond the months of the passes, and Herat is wholly out of range for defensive purposes. It is idle to talk of giving it to Persia or any other authority. We cannot give it have already been made acquainted with the without maintaining our left by force, and all several topics and the silence on others has thing only to do to make our position secure. been freely commented on. No mention is made with due regard to the just claims of the people with whom we have been dealing, and when this has been done there must be a final close to all Central Asian dreams.

The Standard says :-- The alarming preparations at Ghuzni may possibly lead to another attack upon our position, but each day brings us nearer to the time when it will be in our power to strike home at the only remaining centre of Afghan resistance. The military situation perplexes the viceregal advisors. Some strongly urge recruiting double battalions or adding 400 to each nutive regiment. also that military officers in civil employ should be relegated to the military service, but the inpopularity of the war and the growing difficuly of recruiting the native army are recognised. It is understood that General Haines or Sir Garnet Wolseley will command the spring cam-

It has been determined to reform the transport service, upon which millions of pounds sterling have been wasted since the beginning

I myself fancy that a more comprehensive view of matters should be taken than those which diurnal writers usually arrive at. All agree that we must occupy Afghanistan until all resistance to our arms is put down. That done, it seems . " clear to me that the men now in srms against us are the very-men with whom we should treat for the future government of the country. If this be granted it would be more folly to attempt to form a permanent government at present. Again, Herat being in Afghanistan, must be brought under our control just as Cabul, Candahar, or any other-large-city must be. To announce to the Afghans that our dislike to annexation and our love of peace render it necessary that Herat should be left alone, would make, it a sanctuary and a camp for the disaffected to unless the Afghans surrender it to some agent

Well then, Herat, having fallen under our sway, must either be retained or made over to Persia, for surely the idea of returning it to the Afghans cannot be entertained. I should hope that it will be retained, because the trade which must become developed would stand us in good stead, and because its occupation by us would utterly scotch Russia's progress in Central Asia But handing over to Persis may be feasible, as overything in and about Herat is Persian. We could then watch Russia and help Persia if need. be. But then, what is to prevent Persia selling it to Russia? Or again, is an alliance between those Powers against us impossible? The situation in Afghanistan in not improving rom a political point of view, and though our military hold on the country is being each day strengthened, our work is yet far from complete Sherour has been strongly fortified, the Bala Hissar put into an effective state of defence, and various coigns of vantage have been utilised by General Roberts in view of another attack, but our preparations seem to have by no means daunted the tribes influenced by Mahomed Jan. Fakir Khan has sent a message to General Roberts from Chuzni expressing his determination to fight to the bitter end unless Yakoob Khan is recalled, and reinstated as Ameer. Meantime Mahomed Jan remains at Ghuzni assiduously drilling a large body of troops who have recently been reinforced by a considerable number of tribesmen from the Logar Valley. Mahomed Hassan Khan, ex-Governor of Jellalabad, who it will be remembered some time ago fied from that city carrying off a quantity of treasure, is reported to have marched out from Chuzui with three re-iments and some guns. taking the road leading to Cabul. A general order has been widely circulated throughout the country, issued by Mahomed Jan, calling for February. In Cabul, this intelligence is apparently believed in, and an exodus of Hindoo. families has taken place, who fear being left to the tender mercies of Mahomed Jan's army. General Roberts has selected a new site for a camp at Lataband. and his line of communication with Jellalabad has been greatly improved a road suitable for wheeled artillery having been made as far as Jagdalak, which will be speedily extended to Cabul. THE RUMOURED RUSSIAN DEFEAT AT

TCHIKISLAR. The rumour of a great Russian defeat at Tohikislar has as yet received no confirmation. According to a telegram received in Berlin on Wednesday from St. Petersburg, the Tekke Turcomans on the 7th inst. attacked a large transport escorted by several hundred Russian troops on the rond between Tchikislar and Chatte. The transport was cut off and captured by the Tekkes, and the Russians were forced to retreat to Tchikislar. Apparently a large body of Turcomans was in that neighbourhood, as a telegram received by the Daily News from Telegran, two or three days prior to this mensoing the communications between Chatte and Tchikislar. The latest news with respect to the Russian expeditions in Central Asia, is that General Tergukasoff considers it impossible to advance from the Caspian to Merv unless the necessary number of camels can be collected,
